Marello®

OVERVIEW

Marello is an open source on-premise ERP that is designed for webshops and omnichannel retailers. Its focus is on commerce designed for manufacturers, wholesalers, and retailers who are looking to systemize their business processes. The platform is designed so information about the customer can be collected from all touchpoints, allowing for consistent interaction with a company and an improved brand experience.

Marello dashboards are designed to allow for the monitoring of levels to avoid stock-outs and a poor customer experience. The order management systems in a centralized system that combines OMS and ERP functionalities. This allows for the management of orders across channels, improving the visibility of the sale for your sales staff.

Marello offers extensive Inventory and order management functionality; this is helped by forecasting tools, which offer timely and reliable forecasts – especially during product promotions.

Forecast measures in Marello are focused on future demand and are based on a range of criteria, including historical demand, overall trends, product promotions, and seasons. From this data you can set reorder points within the software, looking at the lead time, demands, and safety stock – making products are ordered appropriately to keep the ultimate stock levels needed.

There are also flexible management tools to help synchronize and control how products move between distribution centers, shops, and customers, allowing for more efficient return and refund processes.

Users can benefit from 24/7 support and live chat. Marello offers training and implementation services during installation.
